¹⁰⁸'Great Places' performance is scheduled

As seen previously in the Free Press, the article on "Great Places", we have been working with many talented people in the community helping to put together an invitation to the Great Places Advisory Board.

Our desire is for the Adams Community to be selected as one of the three "communities" in Iowa to be awarded a "Great Place" designation.

Our vision follows the community workshop held in June, where the community saw culture and recreation as two areas to develop our "community" as a "Great Place."

We see these areas as not only being personally enhancing for our own use but also to attract visitors to those and many other attractions in the county.

Our coaches will be here this Thursday to review our plans and to make recommendations for putting together the rest of the package for submission for this designation.

This total effort will require many in-kind man-hours and materials. The public is asked to watch for future developments and determine to how they can help Adams County become a even "Greater Place."

Work on our streets is to start after the first of the month. A few streets will be receiving an overlay and leveling of asphalt, while a few others will be receiving a seal coat of oil/tar with small rock.

The overlay will be utilized on those asphalt streets that are still in fairly good shape but starting to crack and come apart. The idea is to try and preserve them for a number of years yet.

Residents are cautioned about their driving habits for a few weeks until all the loose rock is worked into the road-bed.

The plan is to get a handout to all property along the effected routes discussing travel and parking issues.

Sorry for all the inconveniences but some of our streets will be in better shape for a while.

Residents with pets are reminded that their pets are not to be at large.

"At large" means off the premises of the owner and not under the control of a competent person or restrained within a motor vehicle.

We have received numerous complaints of animals at large recently. All pets shall be licensed and have their proper vaccination. All animals that are found at large may be taken to the veterinarians by the Corning Police Department for impoundment.

Owners will have seven days from date of notice to redeem their animal at the scheduled fee or the animal will be disposed of. All unlicensed animals may be disposed of sooner.

It would also be courteous of owners who are walking their pets to take along a pooper-scooper, especially in the parks and other areas where children play.
